2019 Right to Life Banquet

Speaker: Brad Mattes

Local Right to Life Groups has announced that Bradley Mattes will be the banquet speaker for the upcoming banquet which will be held on Thursday, October 17, at the Simon J. Graber Building off the Odon/Cannelburg Road. Mattes is president of Life Issues Institute, the pro-life grassroots partner of the Susan B. Anthony List Education Fund, headquartered in Cincinnati, Ohio. The organization was founded by pro-life pioneer Dr. John C. Willke in 1991.

Brad Mattes

Brad hosts Life Issues, a daily radio commentary on abortion and other life issues. Carried on nearly 1,200 radio outlets across the US, the program was recognized by National Religious Broadcasters with the 2016 Radio Impact Award. Brad has also hosted various half-hour radio programs on such topics as the anniversary of Roe v. Wade, adoption, men and abortion, and US Supreme Court vacancies.

The RTL Banquet will be held two weeks later this year in order to accommodate the speaker, who is well known in pro-life circles. Brad also served on the National Right to Life Board of Directors along with DCRTL President Louis Kavanaugh Jr., when Dr. Jack Willke served as president of National RTL. Be sure to mark this date on your calendar and keep it open for this special event. Tickets will be available again through Table Hosts as in the past. Tickets will be $15 for adults and college students. Students/children $10.

Have You Attended a Right to Life Banquet? If not, Plan to Attend

If you have not attended a Right to Life banquet, you might consider doing so. If you are pro-life, show your support to the movement by your attendance at these banquets. These pro-life individuals leading the pro-life movement in Daviess and Martin County have given so much of their lives to the organization and to the movement that it would mean so much to them by your presence at the banquet. It would also be encouragement to them to continue in this battle. If they don't do it, who will. We need your support and encouragement as many have been in this battle for 40 years and are tired but do not want to give up. So please encourage those brave soldiers who have given so much to the movement and for the unborn to hang in there and keep going. You may also find these banquets are very informing and interesting; and who knows, you may want to get involved and do something in this battle to save the lives of the unborn. You can do this by your presence at the banquets and by your financial support. Hope to see you there on October 17. For tickets, call 812-486-3658! Please reserve the date of October 17! You will not regret it!

Pray For Our President Trump

We are asking for everyone to consider praying each day for our president and his administration. The liberal media along with Democrats, the Hollywood crowd, and the anti-Christian people in America are working daily as a resistance mob to bring down this administration. They will stop at nothing to discredit the president in every way they can. We truly have a pro-life administration working for us and we need them to continue working to save the lives of the unborn. Let us continue with our prayers for President Trump. Please take time each day to lift up our president and all our elected officials in prayer. Even pray for those who are pro-abortion—let us pray for their conversion.

Democrat Candidates Running for President in 2020 All Support Abortion up to the Time of Birth

by Louis Kavanaugh Jr.

An update on the 2020 election thus far shows that all Democratic candidates for president want to outdo the other on the abortion issue and other life issues. When one candidate wants to kill all unborn children up to the time of birth, another Democrat candidate will go one up on their fellow Democrats running for president by promising free abortions to illegal immigrants, and it just goes on and on from there. If you listened to the Democratic presidential debate it was more than one could take as all Democratic candidates were downright hateful towards President Trump and expressed more concern for illegal immigrants than for the unborn children. I guess you might say none of them are measuring up to the task of being president of the United States. President Trump may not be a perfect individual, but he has this field of Democrats beat by a mile. The problem is that the Democrats are calling for “free stuff” for everyone, and the younger generation and those who have lived off the government are taken in by the “free stuff talk”. We face a tough battle next year for the election of a pro-life president as so many voters are looking for the government to give them something for nothing. We just hope our country has the guts to stand up and vote pro-life and for the protection of the unborn. When we say vote pro-life, we truly mean it! May God bless the USA!

House Democrats Continue to Block Republican Bill to Stop the Killing of the Unborn at Birth

Nancy Pelosi and House Democrats continue to refuse a request to allow a vote on the Born Alive Abortion Survivors Protection Act, legislation that would stop infanticide and provide medical care and treatment for babies who survive abortions. Time and time again House Democrats refused to vote on this bill, reading the same statement they have read the previous occasions that claims there is no bipartisan agreement to bring the bill up for a vote. Despite the claim, Republican leaders have repeatedly asked Pelosi and top Democrats to reach an agreement for the bill to receive a vote.

Pro-Abortion Group Will Spend $20 Million to Defeat President Trump and Pro-Life Lawmakers

A powerful abortion advocacy group plans to spend at least $20 million to support pro-abortion Democratic candidates in 2020. Emily's List, which is based in Washington, D.C., plans to support both state and federal candidates who believe abortions should be legal for any reason up to birth and taxpayer-funded. Its goals include defeating President Donald Trump and pro-life lawmakers who defend the rights of unborn babies.

Two of the pro-abortion group's big targets are Michigan and Minnesota, according to Michigan Public Radio.

National Right to Life Endorse President Trump for Re-Election

By Steven Ertelt, National, Washington, DC

Ahead of its 49th annual convention, the National Right to Life Committee endorsed pro-life President Donald Trump for his re-election. “As our nation celebrates Independence Day, we are proud to endorse the only presidential candidate who stands for the unalienable right to life,” said Carol Tobias, president of the National Right to Life Committee. “From his first day in office, President Trump and his administration have been dedicated to advancing policies that protect the fundamental right to life for the unborn, the elderly, and the medically dependent and disabled.”

NRLC said Trump has taken steps as president to ensure that Americans are not forced to fund abortions or the abortion industry. “One of the president's first acts in office was to restore the Mexico City Policy, which prevents tax funds from being given to organizations that perform abortions or lobby to change abortion laws of host countries. Later, the president expanded this policy to prevent $9 billion in foreign aid from being used to fund the global abortion industry,” the organization said. “The Trump Administration also cut off funding to the United Nations Population Fund because of that agency's involvement with China's forced abortion program,” NRLC added. President Trump pledged “to veto any legislation that weakens current pro-life federal policies and laws, or that encourages the destruction of innocent human life at any state.”

His administration also intervened to stop the United Nations from supporting abortion in a resolution about sexual violence. In 2018, under his leadership, the State Department removed references to the so-called “right” to abort an unborn baby from a global human rights report as well. This spring, the administration also finalized a new Title X rule that requires health care entities to completely separate abortion from their taxpayer-funded services. Planned Parenthood, which already has said it will not comply, could lose about $60 million annually through the policy change. However, the abortion group is suing to block the cuts.

Trump has appointed dozens of conservative judges to federal courts as well, including two to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Editor's Note: President Donald Trump has done more for the pro-life movement and the protection of the unborn than any president since abortion was made legal in all 50 states on January 22, 1973. This action by National RTL Board is not surprising with all the president has done for the pro-life movement.

75% of Americans Oppose Democrats' Agenda for Abortion Up to Birth at Taxpayer Expense

By Micaiah Bilger Washington, DC

A new ad by March for Life Action exposes just how out of touch Democratic presidential candidates are with voters on the abortion issue. The ad, "Consensus," highlights a recent poll showing strong opposition to taxpayer-funded abortions, something every major Democratic presidential candidate supports. "Over a decade of research demonstrates how out of touch the Democratic Party establishment has become with Democratic voters when it comes to abortion," said Jeanne Mancini, March for Life Action. All of the top Democratic presidential candidates want to force taxpayers to fund abortion, including Elizabeth Warren, Bernie Sanders, Kamala Harris and Joe Biden – who recently flip-flopped on the issue. "The Democratic establishment would do well to listen to the American people – or even just their base – instead of caving in to the pressure of the abortion lobby," she said.

Has the Bible changed its view on abortion? I don't think so!

If abortion was wrong before,
It is still wrong today; and no slick-talking individuals can make abortion right!

It may be legal in the eyes of "some people," but it is still morally wrong!

God's Word remains the same!

Joe Biden's Demand for Taxpayer-Funded Abortions Turns off Voters, Poll Shows

Former vice president Joe Biden's newfound opposition to the Hyde amendment, which prohibits the direct federal funding of abortion, has brought the contentious issue of taxpayer-funded abortion into the spotlight again. The politics of covering abortion through Medicaid has received mainstream-media coverage during the last few months. In Slate, Will Saletan recently summarized public attitudes toward taxpayer funding of abortion. Public-opinion scholars know that polling on life issues tends to be sensitive to question wording, but, as Saletan astutely points out, most data show that regardless of wording, there is substantial public opposition to taxpayer-funded abortion.

Biden's reversal on Hyde — which he consistently supported during his decades as a U.S. senator from Delaware — has had an interesting effect on his public support. A Morning Consult poll suggested that his shift will benefit him in the primary, as 30 percent of likely Democratic-primary voters said they would be more likely to support him, while only 19 percent said they would be less likely to do so. But the same poll found that his opposition to Hyde could hurt him in the general election, finding that only 19 percent of general-election voters said they'd be more likely to vote for him, while 24 percent said they'd be less likely to do so.

His switch on the issue is evidence of the changing demographics within the Democratic party, as an older generation of voters is being replaced by a younger cohort that tends to be more liberal on social issues. Biden, along with his fellow primary contenders, clearly believes he must support taxpayer funding of abortion to be competitive on the left, despite the fact that polling data indicates this position is unpopular with the public. Republican politicians should aim to make their own opposition to publicly funded abortion a salient campaign issue during the 2020 election.

Immigration: What's Legal and What's Not

There is so much division in our country now because the Democrats want open borders from Mexico so they can pick up sympatric votes from the Spanish people coming across the border. Now the pro-abortion Democrats want us to pay for abortions for illegal immigrants who are not US Citizens. We have always been a country to accept immigrants, but it could be done legally and not for political purposes. We want to accept them but not have them wave the flag of the country they are fleeing from in our face and try to force us to adopt the ways of their country. They are coming here and should be able to adapt to this country's customs—not in every way, but at least make an attempt. Some are almost antagonistic and making demands on our leaders, and of course this comes with the help of the Democrat leaders in our country.

Raped at 18, This Brave Mother Kept Her Baby Instead of Having an Abortion

Michael Miller Washington, DC

When even some pro-lifers are willing to grant abortion exceptions in cases of rape, Nicole* and her daughter, Zoe, disagree. Nicole, now a member of Samaritan Ministries International, one of the country's leading healthcare sharing ministries, was raped by a high school acquaintance in 1998 in Florida. Nine months later, she gave birth to Zoe, who turned 20 this past winter.

"It wasn't her fault," Nicole says. "I think a lot of people think abortion is an easy out because it takes away the 'problem,' but the problem is not the child. The child didn't do anything. The problem is you have to deal with the grief and the loss and the pain from what happened to you, and you deal with having to forgive somebody who has wronged you. But that person is not this innocent little baby." Zoe, now a wife and mom herself with a job in a church preschool teaching 2-year-olds, said she is thankful for her mother's brave decision. "I am really glad that she decided to keep me and really grateful for my grandparents being there and supporting her," Zoe says.

Nicole married when Zoe was about 4 years old, and she and her husband, who adopted Zoe, have had four additional children. With the help of such resources such as Bible studies, Nicole has been able to work through the pain of the rape. But it has taken years. Nicole's attack occurred when she and a boy went to his house to pick up a prop for a school play they both were performing in.

"He started coming on to me," Nicole says. "I (said) 'No, no, no. You have a girlfriend and I don't want to do that.' He kept persisting and becoming forceful and then he raped me. Then he acted like nothing happened ... I was just sitting there mortified. To him it was no big deal." But it was a big deal to Nicole, who wasn't able to tell anybody besides her parents what had happened until a couple years after Zoe had been born. After scaling back her college plans due to the baby, she moved back in with her parents.

"I was too ashamed to say anything for a long time," Nicole remembers. "That was also hard because you're carrying that secret with you because it's just embarrassing." Nicole even found herself wishing for a miscarriage, "because then I wouldn't have to deal with it." "I know that sounds terrible, but it was out of fear," Nicole says.

The thought of having an abortion was "a brief blip." "I was thinking, 'Oh, if I had an abortion, no one would know, everything would be fine,'" Nicole says. "I think it was really just Satan trying to put that thought into my head, because I'm not pro-abortion at all and wasn't back then. We had done foster care with my parents. I think it was just Satan trying to get me while I was vulnerable. ... I don't think I could live with myself if I actually went through with (abortion)." Nicole says her parents, both devout Christians, were "very supportive" of her choice to raise the baby. Besides her parents, financial support came later from a job at a department store as well as a settlement from a car accident that happened when she was a girl.

"I think God worked this out," says Nicole, who also eventually earned an associate degree in criminal justice.

God wasn't nearly done working in her life, though. When Zoe was 3 and the mom and baby had found their own apartment, Nicole met a Christian man who was very kind to Zoe. He and Nicole were married, and the family of three began to grow. Eventually, Zoe wanted to know more about her history.

"We never really kept it a secret," Nicole says. "I just said, 'Somebody did something bad to Mommy. But I've always loved you. I never regretted having you. You've always been a blessing to me.'"

Zoe made one unsuccessful attempt to contact her birth father in her teens but got no response.

"It was a huge hurt in my life for so long that I still haven't really gotten over it yet," she says. "Rape hurts the kid, too, and not just the woman. But it's still possible to overcome."

The rejection added to typical adolescent woes, but Zoe survived them. Helping was her adoptive father. Zoe says he has always treated her on equal footing with her siblings. "He has always treated me like his biological daughter," she says. "We went to daddy-daughter dances and Girl Scouts. He's never treated me differently. I really commend him for that." Zoe and her mother are both actively pro-life and encourage pregnant moms in difficult circumstances to persevere. "Having a baby alone is very scary, but it's such a short time in your life that it's not worth doing something that drastic, something that you have to live with forever," Nicole says. "You can't take back an abortion. Ever. It's so special that I have Zoe in my life, and she's such a blessing. I don't regret it. I've never regretted it for a day."

Zoe uses her situation to encourage women to keep their babies in all situations. "I can say I'm a product of (rape)," she says. "I'm not less of a person because my biological father did a horrible thing. That doesn't mean I should have to die for that. I don't think the baby should be killed just because the father was a horrible person." Abortion doesn't solve a woman's pregnancy predicament, the mother and daughter say, even in the case of rape. In fact, it makes it worse. "One wrong doesn't right the wrong that has been done to you," Nicole says. "Having an abortion doesn't fix the pain and humiliation you feel from the rape. It just magnifies it."

Teachers Have Alternatives to Pro-Abortion Unions

by Bradley Mattes, Life Issues Institute

The National Education Association (NEA) has come out of the closet, so to speak, and made official what we've suspected all along. After trying to hide it for over thirty years, the NEA is now officially on record supporting an extreme position of abortion on demand throughout pregnancy.

The good news is that tens of thousands of pro-life educators represented by NEA now have alternatives, and a recent US Supreme Court ruling backs them up. The NEA is the nation's largest teacher's union which boasts a membership of 3.2 million educators. At their annual business meeting in Houston, delegates passed New Business Item 56. In part it reads, "The NEA vigorously opposes all attacks on the right to choose and stands on the fundamental right to abortion under Roe v. Wade."

Abortion is the violent killing of unborn babies. It can inflict horrific physical damage on a woman's body and often burdens the mother and father with emotional grief and remorse. It's ironic that a teacher's union is advocating the deaths of millions of future students. Pupils that will help ensure their employment and profession. Not all educators share this pro-death agenda. There are scores of pro-life teachers who want to benefit from effective representation but wish to avoid supporting a pro-abortion advocate like the NEA.

Now they don't have to: Last year's Supreme Court decision, Janus v AFSCME, ruled against forced unionism, agency fees, and coerced dues for all public employees. This means pro-life teachers have rights. With those rights come alternatives to the NEA. According to their website, members of Christian Educators Association International enjoy $2 million professional liability coverage, representation by a local attorney, unlimited educational, and legal consultation and mentorship in how to walk out their faith legally in public schools. The Association of American Educators is a non-union professional educators organization that sees the need for a professional educators organization that focuses on student achievement without an emphasis on partisan politics. Pro-life educators can also benefit from Teachers Saving Children, individuals associated with the education profession whose primary purpose is advocacy for all innocent human life from conception to natural death.

You can help protect America's unborn babies and their parents by sharing this information with others. First, we must tell more people that the NEA seeks to impose an extreme pro-abortion policy in America. Second, if more educators are familiar with the NEA's stand and know of their right to choose alternatives, the power and effectiveness of NEA can be diminished. Please help us spread the word.

Trump Admin Puts into Action New Rule Cutting $60 million from Planned Parenthood

Editor's Note: This is an on again and off again battle as liberal judges rush to protect PP from losing millions of dollars in funding while the Trump administration is determined to cut their funding that is used to promote abortion. This is another indication that President Trump is keeping his word.

WASHINGTON, D.C., (LifeSiteNews, by Calvin Freiburger) – The Trump administration has announced the imminent enforcement of a rule that threatens to cut a tenth of Planned Parenthood's federal tax funding, after receiving the go-ahead from a federal appeals court.

In February, the administration finalized a rule that will require "clear financial and physical separation between Title X-funded projects and programs or facilities where abortion is a method of family planning," ban "referral for abortion as a method of family planning," eliminate a "requirement that Title X providers offer abortion counseling and referral," and require "more complete reporting by grantees about subrecipients and more clarity about informal partnerships with referral agencies."

The rule is projected to cut almost $60 million from the $563.8 million Planned Parenthood received during the most recent fiscal year, and redirect it to women's health providers that aren't involved in abortions. This has provoked intense anger among abortion supporters and lawsuits from 21 states and the District of Columbia, as well as Planned Parenthood and the American Medical Association (AMA).

In April, U.S. District Judge Stanley Bastian issued a nationwide injunction against the rule, claiming it lacked "proper consideration of sound medical opinions and the economic and non-economic consequences" and likely "creates unreasonable barriers for patients to obtain appropriate medical care." Last month a 9th Circuit panel reversed the injunction by a 7-4 vote, and last week the full court reaffirmed that decision, allowing the rule to take effect while the case on the merits is litigated. Following the ruling, the U.S. Department of Health & Human Services (HHS) informed the affected entities that the rule would take effect starting July 15, The Hill reports.

Thoughts On the Immigration Controversy

Editor's Note: The following is an article by Pastor Louis Showers that appeared in the local newspaper on the immigration issue that still rings true even today. We feel this is an issue that many Americans feel strongly about and we are reprinting it here for your consideration. Louis Showers is pastor of the Grace Baptist Church in Washington, Indiana.

By Pastor Louis Showers

I have watched with interest all of the controversy that has arisen over the separation of children from the adults who have entered our country illegally. Those who are driving this controversy claim that their protests are driven out of compassion for the terrible plight of these immigrant families. However, this is only a false façade to hide the true sinister motive driving their actions. This protest, in truth, has little to do with immigrants and everything do with attacking and undermining a successful but controversial president. An examination of the facts will reveal their true agenda.

First, where was the uproar over this practice under the previous administrations? If it is a deplorable practice now, it was equally deplorable in the past; but no one raised a voice about it until President Trump took office. Since the law has not changed nor its enforcement, one is left with the conclusion that the real uproar is over President Trump, not suffering immigrants. The progressive left is taking advantage of the illegal immigrants' plight to push their political agenda. No real compassion here!

Secondly, the correction of this problem is not the responsibility of the president but of Congress. They made the laws, and they have the power to change them. However, as in the case of DACA, the liberal left in Congress has made the problem of illegal immigration the fault of our president. President Trump has repeatedly called upon Congress to propose legislation to fix the problem, but to this date they have offered nothing. This reveals the liberal left's true hypocrisy and agenda. If they were really concerned about the plight of illegal immigrants they would take appropriate action to correct the laws they enacted.

Thirdly, where is the liberal left's outrage concerning those American citizens whose children have been separated from them due to illegal activity? After all, if the real issue is about separating children from their parents, would this not also apply to the citizens of our nation as well? When a citizen of our country violates our laws, if they are a parent, they face the possibility of being separated from their children who are placed in the care of the government. We do this out of compassion for our children. We remove the children from an unsafe environment and from the jails and prisons where their parents are being held. The same can be said of some of the children being brought across the border by adults who are not actually their parents but are criminals using the children as means to gain entrance. The fact that the liberal left accepts separation of children from their parents in our judicial system shows once again that their only interest in the illegal immigrant is to attack the present administration.

Fourthly, where is the liberal left's outrage over the many American victims of those illegal immigrants who commit crimes against our citizens. Their latest cry is to do away with ICE, one of our most important tools for preventing criminal illegal immigrants from entering our country and deporting those who are already here. Their anger and hatred toward our president and his administration is so intense that they are willing to openly allow the criminal element to enter our country to prey on our citizens if by doing so they can undermine, discredit, and even destroy the present administration. Jesus described the rulers of his day, who were just as hypocritical in their agendas, as "white washed tombs" (Matt. 23:27). On the outside they look beautiful but on the inside they are full of self-centered corrupt agendas.

Finally, their hypocrisy is seen in their use of the Bible to defend their agenda. I say hypocrisy because they use the Scriptures as if they believe they are sacred; but in reality their lives reflect that have no respect for the Bible, its teaching, or the God who authored them. Jesus commanded that we love our enemies and bless them (Matt. 5:24), but they clearly do not. They unleash every vulgar and profane thought of the evil heart of man to discredit and destroy the president and those who serve under him. Likewise, Jesus and Paul commanded that we are to honor and obey those in authority over us (Matt. 22:21-22; Romans 13:5-7), but they do not embrace this teaching. The fact that they have chosen some of the vilest content to defame the president at every opportunity is a clear indicator of their hearts' true condition.

It is clear then that those who are shouting the loudest about compassion are in truth hypocrites who are driven by their self-serving and destructive agenda. May we follow the words of Jesus by honoring those in authority and praying for them as they carry out the work that they have been elected to do.

Abortion Activists Vandalize Van Offering Free Ultrasounds to Pregnant Moms Micaiah Bilger

A pro-life organization offering free ultrasounds to pregnant mothers in need was vandalized Saturday, July 13, in Charlotte, North Carolina.

The mobile ultrasound unit, which is owned by Human Coalition, was parked near a huge, new Planned Parenthood abortion facility in the city, the Catholic News Herald reports. Trained medical workers use the vehicle to offer free pregnancy tests, ultrasounds and other information and support to pregnant moms.

During the night of July 11, the words “PRC LIES TO WOMEN” were painted in red across the side of the vehicle, according to the report. Local pro-life advocates informed the police, who are investigating.

Brian Fisher, president of Human Coalition, said they use the mobile ultrasound units to reach women in crisis.

“These mobile clinics are necessary because some women can’t get to our brick-and-mortar clinics when they are in crisis. They may not have transportation or may live too far away. So our mobile clinics go to them,” he explained in an email to supporters. “But not everyone appreciates the compassionate care we provide for women.”

He said their pro-life organization regularly faces attacks from the pro-abortion movement. Fisher described how they have been censored on Twitter and the Apple App Store and volunteers and staff have been subjected to verbal abuse and threats – including one staff member who had a gun pulled on her.

“And the abortion movement has made it clear how they feel about us offering true hope and help to women in Charlotte,” he noted, referring to the vandalism.

For decades, Planned Parenthood’s Charlotte facility did not provide abortions; it only referred women to other facilities for them. However, that will change when it moves into its $10 million new building.

The abortion chain wants to begin aborting unborn babies this summer in the city; however, the state Department of Health and Human Services had not approved its abortion clinic application as of July 10, according to the News Herald.
